7 Must-Visit Places in Andaman for First-Time Travelers

Planning a trip to the Andaman Islands? You're in for a breathtaking experience filled with turquoise waters, white sandy beaches, and unforgettable memories. Whether you're a solo traveler, couple, or family, this guide highlights the must-visit places in Andaman to include in your 4-day or 5-day itinerary.

1. Port Blair: Gateway to Andaman

Port Blair is the capital city and your entry point into the Andaman Islands. Don't miss the iconic Cellular Jail, which reflects the island's colonial history. Enjoy a serene walk along Corbyn's Cove Beach and take a short boat ride to Ross Island for scenic views.

2. Havelock Island: Tropical Paradise

Famous for Radhanagar Beach (one of Asia's best), Havelock Island is a must-visit. It's perfect for swimming, sunsets, and relaxation. If you're into adventure, go scuba diving or sea walking here.

3. Neil Island: Peaceful Escape

Neil Island is known for its laid-back vibe and natural rock formations like the Howrah Bridge. Laxmanpur and Bharatpur Beaches offer crystal-clear waters and rich marine life.

4. North Bay Island: For Water Sports Lovers

This island near Port Blair offers thrilling water sports, from jet skiing to snorkeling. The coral reef here is stunning and easily accessible.

5. Baratang Island: Nature's Hidden Gem

Explore the fascinating limestone caves and see the unique mud volcanoes. The journey through mangrove forests by boat is an adventure in itself.

6. Chidiya Tapu: Birdwatcher's Paradise

Known as the "Sunset Point," Chidiya Tapu is ideal for nature lovers and photographers. It's also a great spot for birdwatching and short treks.

7. Wandoor Beach & Mahatma Gandhi Marine National Park

Located near Port Blair, this area offers scenic beaches and glass-bottom boat rides to explore marine biodiversity.

Conclusion

Whether you're exploring the vibrant marine life, enjoying water sports, or simply soaking in the natural beauty, these destinations offer the best of Andaman. With trusted partners like Andaman Expedition, you can enjoy a seamless and memorable vacation.
